MEMORANDUM FOR DEPUTY DIRECTOR FOR INTELLIGENCE, CIASUBJECT: Expression of Appreciation/Commendation

During the past two years [] a member of the Office of Scientific and Weapons Research, contributed significantly to special NRO survivability assessments. These assessments are part of recent, extremely important National and DOD intelligence warfighting utility studies (National Reconnaissance Capability through General Nuclear War, Survivable and Enduring Intelligence System (SEIS), Reconnaissance Systems Review (RSR) and OSD's Nuclear Weapons Master Plan--Phases 1 and 2). Specifically, [] provided the NRO Staff with Soviet antisatellite (ASAT) threat assessments, day-to-day intelligence threat reports and effectiveness evaluations on proposed survivability enhancements. He also upgraded the NRO ASAT Threat Handbook for the NRO Program Offices. The briefings and special reports regarding employment of the Soviet ASAT threat across the full spectrum of conflict have been particularly invaluable to the completion of these studies.
